

Abstract

A system and method for using natural gas to generate electricity. Natural gas under pressure is withdrawn from a well and passed to a turbine. The pressure of the natural gas acts on a turbine fan that in turn drives a generator to generate electricity.

- 5 The natural gas used to drive the turbine fan suitably is reused to drive another turbine and generator, thereby producing additional electricity.